Lin Ren is a Ph.D. student at the School of Computer Science and Engineering, Southeast University, China, advised by Prof. Guohui Xiao and Prof. Guilin Qi. His primary research interest is Knowledge Representation and Reasoning (KRR), with contributions from knowledge graphs, natural language processing, and large language models. A particular emphasis is on Virtual Knowledge Graphs (VKGs), also known as Ontology-based Data Access (OBDA).

Research Interests

- Knowledge Representation and Reasoning (KRR)
- Virtual Knowledge Graphs, Ontology-based Data Access (OBDA)
- Answer Set Programming (ASP)
- Large Language Models
- Causal Inference
- Information Extraction

Education

Sept 2024 - present, Ph.D. student in Software Engineering
Southeast University, Nanjing, China
School of Computer Science and Engineering advisors Prof. Guohui Xiao and Prof. Guilin Qi

June 2024, Master of Electronic Information
University of South China, Hengyang, Hunan, China
School of Computer Science and Technology advisors Prof. Yongbin Liu and Prof. Chunping Ouyang thesis “Research on Debiasing Knowledge Graphs based on Causal Inference” (in Chinese)

June 2021, Bachelor of Engineering in Software Engineering
University of South China, Hengyang, Hunan, China
School of Computer Science and Technology
thesis “Causal Relation Extraction from Financial Text” (in Chinese)
